Our season has ended, and now it is time for you, our readers, to pretend that time has stood still, or perhaps even to have reversed itself, so we can get caught up on newsletters from the summer and fall. We apologize for being late, but we have discovered there are only 24 hours in each day. So return with us to July to enjoy the summer one more time.

One of the things we in the northland almost pride ourselves with is sunsets and cloud formations. Oh, yes, we know they are not advertised or featured as highlights of the area, but they do exist, and they exist gloriously.

After an exciting day of fishing and having brought in those perfect eaters, there is nothing like sitting at the dock as the sun is sinking behind the trees, watching its reflection on the calm flat waters. It is almost as though the water is glass and what you see is a duplicate picture—one right side up and the other upside down.

Then, there are the peek a boo shots of clouds through the trees or the 'pink' clouds as the sun reflects off of them as it sets into the waters of Moose Lake.

Of course the fish kept coming in. A lot of people are hesitant to clean Northern's because of the Y bones in them. An easy way to solve this problem is to merely clean them, prepare your favorite bread dressing with herbs, moistened with butter and wine, wrapped in foil and baked/steam them on a grill. When served you just pick off the meat and the Y bones stay behind. If you want to fillet them, please see our guides. They are good to eat either way.

In about the middle of the month we suddenly had a violent thunder and lightning storm though it did not seem that close. Then, suddenly, there was a very loud bang. Betsy was soaking wet having just stepped out of the shower and could have sworn it went off right beside her. Willy was in his cabin across the driveway and was sure it was just outside his window. It turned out that a large pine tree on Moose Lake Road that is just before our driveway that had been hit. In surveying the tree, it seems the lightning hit the top of the tree, circled around the upper part of it and then blew out the main part of the trunk and literally threw wood pieces of the trunk all over the road. Though it is difficult to see in the picture, some pieces were even driven vertically into the ground.

It was a good month. Come next summer and enjoy it with us.
